

LANSING STARTS REPLY; CRISIS IS RECOGNIZED

SECRETARY'S ANSWER WILL MAKE GERMANY DECIDE ON FRIENDSHIP.

BRYAN BLOCKED AGREEMENTS

His Presence In Cabinet Prevented
Agreement On Limit of U.
S. Negotiations.

(Associated Press)
Washington, July 12.—The situation between Germany and the United States is so critical that it will require lengthy consideration, according to high officials.

It is firmly believed that President Wilson and Secretary Lansing, working independently, will prepare memoranda, and will confer after their ideas have matured.

Whether Lansing will go to Cornish to see the president will be decided later. It is understood here that the Secretary of State desires to see the German ambassador, and it is not unlikely that Count von Bernstorff will be given an intimation of the seriousness of the United States regarding this crisis.

Lansing has begun the reply to the German note which it is understood will define the American position even clearly so that Germany's subsequent action would definitely determine whether diplomatic relations shall be continued.

Washington, July 12.—There will be considerable delay in framing the reply to the German note because the president and his advisers never have determined even tentatively how far the United States would go in defending the principles involved in the submarine issues. All that can be said with authority at this time is that the president will deal with the situation with firmness.

It is learned for the first time that the president and his cabinet advisers never have reached an agreement as to the course that the United States will pursue in the event of Germany refusing, as she now has refused, to yield to the demands of this government.

Ordinarily this is a question that would have been settled, at least tentatively, in advance. The reason why no general plan of action was agreed upon in the cabinet became known here. Mr. Bryan as secretary of state was the real reason. His opposition to the firm notes dispatched by President Wilson to Germany was such that no attempt was made to settle upon a program of action for meeting Germany's refusal. So stubbornly did Mr. Bryan oppose the president's course in the cabinet and so eager were the president and his followers to avoid if possible an open break with Bryan that no attempt was made to decide in advance on an unfavorable outcome of the controversy.

Used Revolver To Win Girl; Is Now In Co. Jail

Maryan Weslowez Disposed
Jealousy When Lady
Favored Another

Maryan Weslowez was arrested Sunday evening at the Miley O. Skopck home, 902 Park avenue, after threatening to shoot Mr. Skopck's daughter, Miss Mamie. He was arraigned before Justice A. A. Hanneke this morning to answer to the charge, carrying concealed weapons and was fined $10 and costs and not having the necessary finances will board out the fine in jail. When he finishes the sentence he will be again called into court and placed under bonds to keep the peace.

It appears that Weslowez has been staying at the Skopck home since coming to this city from Chicago and had been showing his attentions to Miss Mamie. Recently the young lady has been having attentions paid to her by another young man and this had enraged Weslowez. Sunday evening he secured a revolver and made dire threats against the young lady and the police were appealed to. Motor Policeman LeRoy Lightner made a hurry up call at the Skopck home and just as he appeared Weslowez ran around to the back of the house and when caught by the officer he did not have the revolver. A search was then made for the gun and it was found in the back yard in the weeds where it had been thrown by Weslowez.

NAVY WARNS BRITISH BOATS

Wireless Message Sent To Two Mule-
Laden Vessels Now On Ocean.

(Associated Press)
Washington, July 12.—The navy department is awaiting a response to a wireless sent to the British steamships Hawth Head and Barnum Napier, laden with mules, to look out for bombs.

(Associated Press)
New Orleans, La., July.—A local newspaper has received a letter signed "Pearce," indicating that explosives had been placed on vessels which sailed from New Orleans, July 3, bound for England, and believed now to be off the Florida coast.

The vessels will probably stop at Norfolk for coal and it is hoped to reach there, if not before, "Pearce," the writer, declared in his letter his intention to kill Morgan and British Ambassador Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, thus completing the work of Muentner, with whom he said he had formed a partnership to keep the United States out of war.

"Pearce" declares that it was Muentner who warned the passengers of the Lusitania before the vessel sailed on her fatal voyage.

Man Arrested

Hans Halle was arrested by the New Orleans authorities and will be held until the two vessels are reported safe. Halle was arrested in December when he confessed to constructing a bomb to be shipped and placed aboard a French steamer at New York, but he was recently acquitted of the charge of conspiracy to ship explosives on an interstate carrier.

New York, July 12.—Detectives searched without result for persons who might have been responsible for the placing of bombs on ocean vessels leaving New York for foreign ports in the last few months. Following the report that nine small bombs had been found on the British tramp steamer Kirkoswald when she reached Marseilles from this port late in May came statements that explosives had been discovered also on the Lord Erne, which left for Havre April 29, and the Bankdale, which sailed for Havre May 7.

"From the investigation so far made I am not inclined to believe there was any bomb plot," said Captain Tunney of the department of detectives. "Subsequent revelations may change this opinion, but up to the present there have been no developments."

Carranza May Gain Support Of Washington

His Chances Will Improve If He Can Reopen The Way
To Border

(Associated Press)

Washington, July 12.—There are indications that if Carranza, whose forces now occupy Mexico City, can acquire further territory north of the capital and reopen communication to the American border, his chances of obtaining the moral support of the United States will improve.

Washington, July 12.—Official dispatches to the state department from Consul John R. Silliman at Vera Cruz confirm the capture of Mexico City by Carranza forces and announce that General Gonzales will take in 300 car loads of food for the famine sufferers.

It is expected now that General Carranza will present his claim to the state department for recognition as the de facto power in Mexico.

Such a claim must be passed upon by President Wilson personally, as he has taken over entire direction of Mexican matters. Should a formal demand be made it will be referred at once to Cornish for consideration.

Dispatches from Vera Cruz to the Carranza agency here said that General Lopez Delara had been appointed by General Carranza as governor of the federal district in which the capital is located and that he, with his staff and governmental departments are en route to the capital.

HOME GUARDS LOST SATURDAY BUT WON SUNDAY'S CONTEST

BI-STATERS AND DIXON PLAYED GREAT 1 TO 0 GAME AT ROCHELLE.

DIXON WON ON HOME LOT 11-5

Stratton's Men Lambasted Two of the Visiting Pitchers for Seventeen Hits.

The Dixon Home Guards split even in their week-end games with the Bi-State leaguers who are representing Waterman, losing at Rochelle Saturday afternoon 1 to 0, and taking Sunday's game in this city 11 to 5.

The Saturday game at Rochelle was an exceptionally fine exhibition, both teams playing errorless ball, and both pitchers working like twenty-one jeweled watches. Huber, for Dixon, allowed but three hits, while Dixon could gather but two off Davis, who formerly pitched for Aurora in the Bi-State.

Sunday's Contest.

The joy was taken out of Sunday's game here in the second inning when the Home Guards put the rollers under Hilliker, a DeKalb one-armed phenom pitcher. From that time on Dixon did about as they pleased—but at the same time some of their doings were not overly pleasing to the spectators.

The second inning was some slugging bee. A pass and four hits, including two-baggers by C. Keenan and Devine and a home run by Lightner netted five runs.

Squeeze Plays Failed.

In the fourth Dixon filled the sacks and tried the squeeze play twice, but there was nothing doing. Dixon hitters were unable to get it out of the infield.

The seventh inning settled the doings, five hits off Dean, who had replaced Hilliker after the second, netting three runs. The visitors scored two in the ninth when Lightner eased up, but their case was hopeless at that time.

The Dixon players helped the team batting average quite some in the contest, pounding out seventeen hits off the two visiting box artists Devine and Lightner being the stellar attractions with the bat. The score:

HOME GUARDS LOST SATURDAY BUT WON SUNDAY'S CONTEST

BI-STATERS AND DIXON PLAYED GREAT 1 TO 0 GAME AT ROCHELLE.

DIXON WON ON HOME LOT 11-5

Stratton's Men Lambasted Two of the Visiting Pitchers for Seventeen Hits.

The Dixon Home Guards split even in their week-end games with the Bi-State leaguers who are representing Waterman, losing at Rochelle Saturday afternoon 1 to 0, and taking Sunday's game in this city 11 to 5.

The Saturday game at Rochelle was an exceptionally fine exhibition, both teams playing errorless ball, and both pitchers working like twenty-one jeweled watches. Huber, for Dixon, allowed but three hits, while Dixon could gather but two off Davis, who formerly pitched for Aurora in the Bi-State.

Sunday's Contest.

The joy was taken out of Sunday's game here in the second inning when the Home Guards put the rollers under Hilliker, a DeKalb one-armed phenom pitcher. From that time on Dixon did about as they pleased—but at the same time some of their doings were not overly pleasing to the spectators.

The second inning was some slugging bee. A pass and four hits, including two-baggers by C. Keenan and Devine and a home run by Lightner netted five runs.

Squeeze Plays Failed.

In the fourth Dixon filled the sacks and tried the squeeze play twice, but there was nothing doing. Dixon hitters were unable to get it out of the infield.

The seventh inning settled the doings, five hits off Dean, who had replaced Hilliker after the second, netting three runs. The visitors scored two in the ninth when Lightner eased up, but their case was hopeless at that time.

The Dixon players helped the team batting average quite some in the contest, pounding out seventeen hits off the two visiting box artists Devine and Lightner being the stellar attractions with the bat. The score:

Ward slammed out four hits during the afternoon festivities, scored two runs and stole three bases. His clean fielding record showed two put outs.

CZAR'S MEN WIPE OUT ARMY CORPS

Petrograd Claims Teutons Are Fleeing; Losses 40,000.

SAYS MACKENSON IN DANGER

Austro-Germans Suffer Enormous Losses on Forty Mile Front in Galicia—Ambitions of German Commander Doomed to Failure—Expected to Take Moscow.

Petrograd, July 12.—The defeat and pursuit of the Austrians has so reduced the scope of the enemy's offensive that it is impossible for their morale to withstand further shocks. Von Mackensen's position is now most critical.

Whole Army Corps Lost, Russ Claim.
Petrograd, July 12.—It is authoritatively stated that the Austro-German force, which was decisively defeated southeast of Lublin, consisted of about three army corps (120,000 men), at least one of which has vanished from the field in consequence of last week's losses.

In this area the invaders are everywhere withdrawing, and in some parts the retreat has the character of flight. The artillery is being rushed to the rear and the infantry left to its fate.

Show Signs of Activity.

For the present, however, the success of the Russians must not be overestimated, as the sector between the Vistula and Byehawa, eighteen miles south of Lublin, constitutes only forty miles out of a total front of about 1,000 miles. Both the Germans and Austrians are showing signs of great activity in other districts, but it remains to be seen whether this activity indicates serious aggressive intentions or merely is designed to suggest their existence so as to disturb the plans of the Russians.

The ambitions propounded in the confidential army order of General Van Mackensen, which came to light during the recent fighting, are not likely to be realized. According to this document the recapture of Galicia was to be "merely the trifling prelude to a great warlike drama, the last act of which will be played out in the environs of Kieff."

GLOOM AT CONSTANTINOPLE

Rome Correspondent Says Separate Peace Seems Near.

London, July 12.—A Rome dispatch to the London Daily News says: "A sense of impending tragedy is felt in Constantinople; the conviction prevails among the inhabitants that Turkey's downfall is inevitable. Advocates of a separate peace are no longer molested and are not considered traitors. The Young Turks are openly embezzling and hoarding funds for future exile. A coup d'etat is possible at any moment. Ammunition is scarce. The sultan is hopelessly ill."

Becker Pica Denied.

New York, July 12.—George D. H. Rangeley, Me., July 12.—The application which was made to Justice Hughes of the supreme court of the United States for a writ of error in the case of Charles Becker, convicted of instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, New York gambler, was denied on the ground that there was no substantial federal question involved.

ABOUT THAT GARDEN.

A garden needs the constant watchfulness and care which only a woman can give. The man plants, she must water and God gives the increase. He makes it to glow with patches of color; lilacs and roses, syringas and all sorts of flowering things, from crocuses to chrysanthemums. Beds full of lilies, mignonette and sweet-smelling herbs, with alyseum and many other colored friends. Under the trees grow ferns, blue-bells, scyllas, Jack-in-the-pulpits and Indian pipes; and in the open grassy spaces, stars-of-Bethlehem, buttercups, daisies and the little blue grass flowers. Even the utility garden of the kitchen is beautiful, with borders of perennials and patches of annuals and blossoming fruit trees.

Patience, perseverance, hope, thoroughness, love of art and beauty must all be in the heart of gardeners, if they would be successful.

A garden is not made
By saying: "Oh, how lovely!"
Or sitting in the shade.

One difficulty about life's lessons in patience is that there are too many instructors and not enough folks willing to learn.

The birds have a garden of their own. It is true that they share in our gardens also. They feast on our strawberries; they peck at our cherries. When Wheatley drew attention to the fact that the birds would surely eat the cherries from the tree planted so near the drinking fountain, the reverend mother placidly remarked: "That is why we planted it there."

But there is one part of the garden that is reserved for the birds. It is the part the birds themselves have planted with weeds; and it is their seeds that the birds love. Among the weeds are a few chicory plants whose roots, dried up and ground, are the poor man's coffee. The seeds of the first American chickory came over with the Puritans long ago. Now it is one of our loveliest wild flowers, beautifying the roadsides and waste lands with its soft blue blossoms and furnishing many a feast for the finches and chickadees, as the tall, scraggy stalk rises above the snow, still holding some of the seeds. The weed garden repays us many times over for letting it stay as it is, and there, on cold January mornings, we see chickadees, jays, juncos, goldfinches and such other cheery winter residents as wandering cedar birds, tree sparrows, winter chippies and evening grosbeaks stopping to breakfast.—Gems.

WHEAT WEDDINGS.

From the colleges of the east went to the wheat fields of the west myriad potential swains. In the fields of Kansas were many Rebeccas at the well drawing water for the farm hands, and many Ruths gleaning after the reapers. There were more of these idyllic feminine personalities than there were male correspondents, and the hearts of the winsome maids of the winnowed fields were heavy thereat. Then, as the grasshoppers in swarms and as the locusts rise from the earth, in myriads came the student hosts from the east, from colleges and universities—each gifted with a profound ability to size up a pretty girl to measure her matrimonial possibilities.

As a result in one county alone, Smith county, report has it that the number of wheat weddings will vastly go beyond the crop of Cupid in any prior harvesting by the meek maids who capture the college men who have the temerity to light about them amid the golden-headed fields of wheat.

There has always been an affinity between wheat and weddings. In the old Anglo-Saxon days it was wheat—the increase and multiply suggestive wheat—that was thrown after the bride, and not unmeaning rice. And so in Kansas the dominion of love is the field of unshaven wheat. There are being planted truths that will be garnered in matrimony once the fields have been reduced to stubble and the dreams they have engendered 'neath the moon have been made concrete to the merry music of wedding bells.—Baltimore American.

"WHAT'S THE USE?"

Some people ask: "What's the use of dressing children so nicely?" What's the use of spending time on a flower garden? What's the use of poetry? Why not say it in plain English? We answer: What's the use of the dimple on the baby's cheek? or the sheen on the pigeon's neck? or the flash of the bluebird's wing? or the fragrance of the rose? Singularly enough the poet is regarded by many as an unpractical and unproductive member of society—a drone in the hive of industry. Many people believe that it would be better to put a pick and shovel into his hands and set him at some "useful task." But, happily, life is not constituted solely on the pick and shovel principle. The earth is not flat, and the sky is not a metallic vault. On the other hand this little globe of ours is on the most romantic of journeys, bathing itself in the very elements of magic as it flies, and surrounded by the unutterable poetry of the infinite expanse which surges through every star and every child, every grass blade and every smallest grain of dust in our garden paths.—Gems.

THE GRAND DETOUR BRIDGE.

The committee from the Board of Supervisors in charge of the matter of re-flooring the Grand Detour bridge had better get busy for the floor of the bridge is in an extremely dangerous condition. There are holes, or were yesterday, in the floor of the bridge, plenty large enough to let a horse's feet through and break the animal's legs and if the floor is so thin and weak that large holes are appearing, it must be very thin and weak in large areas, so that a party of automobilists may find themselves precipitated into the river soon.

A veritable cloud-burst of soot descended from some unholy chimney upon East First street in the vicinity of the Telegraph office this morning and persons walking along the sidewalk were unrecognizable when they had finally fought their way into the daylight again. Pittsburgh has nothing on us when some of the factory smokestacks get to drawing good. There are several very objectionable smokestacks in the city and the council would earn the undying gratitude of the populace if it would order smoke consumers on.

The boys of the gallant seventh are in camp on the shore of Rock river just above Dixon, at Camp Dunne. Dixon bids a hearty welcome to the soldier lads.

SAFETY FIRST.

The United States is a great country to think in slogans. As a rule we sit around waiting to adopt a great thought until some one sets it to music.

A year or two ago, some genius synopsized the idea that it was better to be cautious than anything else and ever since then "Safety First" has been the watchword in this republic.

"Safety First" is a splendid watchword. It has already saved hundreds of lives in American factories. When a factory looks at safety first and dividends afterward it does not become a pest to humanity as it once did when it was cheaper to pay damages on human junk in a steel mill than it was to slow up a little and save a "Hunk" for his family.

Since the railroads have taken up the question of "Safety First" a large number of passengers have escaped death who, according to statistics would be mangled remains under the old plan. Still this is almost balanced by the number of patrons who have starved to death while waiting for the trains to get somewhere.

"Safety First" is all right on a railroad, but it ought not to be accomplished by running stationary engines in a manner which would be a revelation to many an American manager.

In many cases "Safety First" is a great curse. Too often the automobilist who runs down the pedestrian adopts this motto instead of driving back and taking his medicine.

"Safety First" is also a great motto for the man with a deep crimson thirst for revenge. By trailing his victim he may eventually get him into a state which gives a man a life sentence for murder and then commutes it to five years for good behavior. There he kills him with a glad smile. If we were going to be a murderer we would pick our state first with anxious care.

"Safety First" as a national policy will prevent many a cruel war. By backing down rapidly with a nervous smile whenever a dispute occurs, a nation may accumulate peace and dividends for many years. Still there are people who would just as soon be in the trenches for a year as under the bed all the time.

Over in China the government at last threw away "Safety First" which had been its motto for 4,000 years and dared Japan to come on. Much to its surprise it is still intact. "Bluff First" is used as a policy fully as often as "Safety First."

ULTIMATUM IS GIVEN WRIGHT

Funds of Crystal Lake, Ill., Bank Must Be Intact Wednesday.

Crystal Lake, Ill., July 12.—Charles B. Wright, cashier of the Citizens State bank of Crystal Lake, whose loans of $127,000 to the General Brakeshoe company of Chicago led the bank to close, returned to Woodstock, where awaited him an ultimatum from C. W. Coleman, state bank examiner, that every cent of the amount of the investments must be made good by Wednesday or summary action would be taken to preserve the estate and protect the interests of the depositors and stock holders.

What is meant by summary action neither Examiner Coleman nor officials of the bank would explain. But significance was attached to the presence in Crystal Lake of State's Attorney David Joslyn and Sheriff Wandrack of McHenry county. They arrived in Crystal Lake shortly after Joslyn announced he was keeping in touch with every development of the bank closing and stood ready to take whatever action circumstances warranted.

CONNIE MACK HAS BIG JOB BEFORE HIM

RECONSTRUCTION OF ATHLETICS
WILL BE WATCHED WITH INTEREST.

ALEXANDER AFTER S. O. RECORD

Great Phillie Pitcher May Get One
Thousand Strike-Outs This Season.

(Associated Press)
New York, July 12—Apparently Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, has at the age of 53 undertaken the task of building another pennant winning team for Shibe Park. Because of his record of six American League pennants and three world's championships, this latest reconstruction work on the Athletics baseball machine will be watched with unusual interest by fans in all parts of the country.

Following the four straight game defeats administered to the Mackmen by the Boston Braves in the World's Series of 1914 there were many reports to the effect that the Athletic combination would be broken up and a new team formed. The sale of Collins to the Chicago White Sox; Penneck to Boston and Shawkey to New York; the release of Combs, Bender and Plank; the dropping of Baker from the pay roll and the passing of still other players to the minors indicate that the work is well under way.

Now rumor has it that still other stars of yesteryear are to change their Athletic uniform for those of other American League clubs while Mack will fill their places with promising recruits from the minor and college diamonds. Grounds for these reports are found in the signing of Crowell, Healey, Haas, Sheehan and Johnson and the statements that Mack has lines out for some promising material in southern and western circuits.

The ability of the veteran manager to develop stars from youthful players recruited from "varsity and bush fields is well known. Plank, Collins, Combs and Barry all joined the Athletics without the formality of minor league experience while Baker, McInnis, Bender and Strunk and several others served but a short period in the minors before being gathered in by Mack. If he can repeat his previous record in this respect, in these days of close baseball competition and fine com scouting, his position as the greatest manager of baseball history will be beyond dispute.

After New Record.
Grover Alexander of the Philadelphia Nationals' twirling staff promises to complete a record this season equalling in interest Honus Wagner's hundred home runs. If he maintains his present strike-out speed Alexander should round out 1,000 whiffs of opposing batters before the curtain falls on October 7.

At the beginning of the 1915 campaign his record showed that close to 700 batters had been turned back to the bench during Alexander's league career, as a result of failing to connect with Grover's curves. When the season opened he needed about 214 strike-outs to complete his 1,000 and July 1 saw him well past the hundred mark, so it appears reasonably certain that Alexander will fan his thousandth opponent within the next thirteen weeks.

Miss Mary Hewitt of Franklin Grove was in Dixon Sunday.

the death of the vicar-general of the diocese. After the death of Bishop Ryan of Buffalo in the same year he was chosen his successor. The following year he was consecrated bishop.

Strike Arbitr

In th longshoremen's union strike in Buffalo in 1898 he served as arbitrator and after 10 days negotiations the strike was settled on the lines laid down by Bishop Quigley. He was a vigorous foe of socialism among the labor unions of Buffalo.

He was ordained Archbishop of Chicago, Jan. 8, 1903, succeeding Patrick A. Feehan. In assuming this responsible post he had charge of 300 churches, 13 colleges and academies, 6 orphan asylums, 16 hospitals, one theological seminary, two universities and several convents and monasteries. He always took a deep interest in the causes of church extension and education.

Among the important things accomplished by Archbishop Quigley in Chicago were:

Divided big parishes so as to lessen overcrowding.

Materially improved the system of Roman Catholic education in Chicago.

Created boards of laymen trustees in each parish to supervise finances. Made certain the creation of the Diocese of Rockford by surrendering territory tributary to his own archdiocese.

Appointed Bishop Paul Peter Rhode as his auxiliary, the first Polish Bishop named in the United States.

Called the first missionary congress of the Roman Catholic church ever held in this country. It was held in Chicago in 1908.

THE INVASION OF AMERICA

By JULIUS W. MULLER

CHAPTER XVII. "The Enemy Has Us."

THE enemy did not try to rush the works at Sandy Hook. He had time and means and did not need to sacrifice men. To the heights of the Atlantic and Navesink Highlands, that ascend so strangely out of the sea and out of the flat sea country there, he lifted guns of great caliber. He placed guns in cover behind every undulation. When he had placed all these weapons with scientific precision they began to fire.

None of the mobile artillery installed for the defense of the fort against land attack could reach the invaders' heavier artillery with any hope of effect. The men in the defenses, cowering under bomb proofs and in pits, held out for a day and a night. They held out for another day. Then there was nothing left to defend. Dismounted and broken, their armament was destroyed. The survivors surrendered when the enemy's cavalry rushed the ruined works.

New York city did not know that the Sandy Hook defenses had fallen till three light enemy cruisers appeared in the upper bay and steamed through the East river to the navy yard. Then the city knew that its harbor was open. The army that took Sandy Hook did not return to New York. The flotilla took the troops and their light artillery aboard at the Atlantic Highlands, and steamed back through Raritan bay, through the narrow sound behind Staten Island and into Newark bay. Here other boats met it with cavalry and motor troops from Yonkers.

Troops landed at both sides of the entrance to the bay, taking Bayonne and Elizabethport, with their oil refineries and tanks, and their ship yards. Then the flotilla moved to the bay and put great bodies of soldiers of all arms ashore at the great factory town of Newark. A big city, and a difficult city to control, it kept the commanders occupied for three days before they had made their footing good, but then it was an admirable and a vastly valuable base. From it the troops spread out and took Rutherford, Passaic, Hackensack and Paterson.

It was rich commercial territory that complemented the value of possessing New York, for these factory cities were a part of the metropolitan district counted with New York city in every national estimate of industrial wealth. This district contained almost 32,000 factories. In wealth and productivity it was a choice prize.

Having made good its hold on the new conquest across the Hudson river, the invading army ceased to expand. Even with the accretion that had been made to its forces it had none to spare for further operations, for it now had under its charge more than 62,000 square miles of domain with more than 13,000,000 people.

This was a kingdom. The victor set himself to the task of organizing his government, which meant the task of turning it to profit. From the beginning he had taught the conquered people that an invading army lives on the country. Wherever his troops entered the inhabitants were ordered to supply all that was needed by men and horses.

The occupying army demanded lodgings and stable room. They demanded accommodations for everything belonging to the army. They requisitioned fuel and straw. They called for teams, cars, motors, wagons, boats and claimed the services of their owners. They occupied flour mills and bakeries. They took machinery, material, tools and equipment for repairing their munitions of war, bridges and roads.

They declared themselves possessed as absolute owners by right of conquest of all public property besides cash. Thus in New York they asserted ownership of $99,000,000 worth of suspension bridges, and in Boston they took bridges to the value of ten and a quarter millions. They took the New York city armories, valued at $15,000,000. They declared that they owned the subway, valued at $100,000,000.

All United States property, comprising fortifications everywhere in the conquered territory, navy yards, post-offices, custom houses, lighthouses, treasury buildings and courthouses, were listed in proclamations throughout the occupied country as good and legal prizes of war. The property so seized in the city of New York alone amounted to $93,000,000.

The United States was working furiously for defense. In the steel country of Pennsylvania and the west all the works were being altered to turn them into factories for shells, shrapnel, big guns and gun carriages. At Watervliet and Indian Head the capacity of the shops had been enlarged immensely, and there was not a moment in the day or the night when there was a pause in the headlong labor. Powder was being made in the middle west, in places safe from any possible attack by aeroplanes. The flying machine works of Hammondsport, and Buffalo, in New York, San Diego, California, and Overland park in Kansas were turning out machines at the rate of one and sometimes two a month. Half a dozen other factories were being erected.

A group of automobile factories had agreed to turn out two ton trucks at the rate of forty a day, and, indeed, already were producing thirty a day. One concern was working under contract to produce enough automobiles every day to carry one regiment, each machine capable of making 100 miles a day with four men and ten days' rations of food and ammunition. Others had agreed between them to produce enough motors in every working day to carry five or six regiments.

All the industrial efficiency on the land could not provide 15,000 trained and experienced officers, and that number was needed if the country was to put half a million volunteers into the field.

All the efficiency of men and engines could not correct, except by tedious, slow training, the defects in any army system that had made it impossible in peace times to concentrate 16,000 men and officers at the San Antonio border of Texas in less than three months after the order was issued.

All the efficiency could not alter the fact that of the whole militia force of the United States, enrolled as "men armed with the rifle," exclusive of the four divisions already with the army, there were only 21,000, or 38 per cent, who could shoot well enough to make them suitable for battle purposes. There were only 425,000 rifles in reserve. The volunteers would have to drill without arms till factories could be put into operation.

Seven militia mobilization camps were in the territory lost to the United States. One thousand acres of powder works in New Jersey were in the possession of the invaders.

The volunteers needed shirts, breeches, underwear. The four leading cities in the manufacture of cotton goods, the four that led in making woolen goods and the leaders in making cloth were cut off from the United States.

The volunteers needed shoes. More than all, they needed shoes—shoes shoes and again shoes! Americans realized with heavy hearts how their unromantic things were making them helpless; what a blow it had been to their defense when the great Massachusetts factories of Lynn, Brockton, Haverhill and Boston with their unreplaceable machinery had been taken. These cities and cities scattered throughout the rest of lost New England had produced 57 per cent of the boots and shoes for the United States.

The army was short, even under its old, economical estimates of more than 300 field artillery. To put the army of 300,000 volunteers into the field it would need at least 1,500. In the days of peace it had been calculated that the shortage then existing could not be made good in less than two years. Now, with half a hundred factories toiling, with blackened Watervliet roaring and changing as never a factory had labored before, guns were being turned out at a rate that promised to reach surprising dimensions when all the shops were fully at work.

But at best there were six months during which nothing could be done except to prepare. During those six months while the country poured forth its money prodigally to make up in wasteful speed what it had neglected during long years the invader could sit in the conquered seaboard cities and suck them dry.

The volunteers had to learn everything. They had to learn to shoot, to survive slash and rain and cold, to dig trenches, and to march twenty and more miles a day with blankets, half a tent, frying pan, plate, knife, fork, water bottle, first aid kit, an emergency ration, an intrenching tool and bayonet, a heavy rifle and ninety heavy cartridges.

"Six months at the very lowest possible estimate," said the secretary of war. "And it will be six months of such work as this country never did before in its history."

"Six months with the North Atlantic seaboard amputated," said the president, "means six months of bleeding to death."

Even without the mortal blow that was struck at the country's commerce by the locking of its Atlantic and Gulf ports, this severance of New England and the Metropolitan district of New York did, indeed, cause a huge, bleeding wound. Of the seventy-five manufacturing cities of the United States whose manufactured product ranked highest in value and played the greatest part in the industrial wealth of the country, the invader possessed twenty-seven, or more than one-third. Fifty-six thousand manufacturing establishments were in his control.

The nation, thus maimed, stared aghast at the value of the prize that had been wrested from it for lack of a little insurance. Its individuals had paid scrupulously each year for insurance against fire and crime and had scrutinized their policies with the utmost care. But they had permitted their chosen representatives in legislatures and congress to do as they chose about insuring against war, to spend money as they would or not at all, and to accept a worthless policy obtained at an extravagant price.

Now they faced a loss that, for the time at least, might well be called total. The value of Boston and the city of New York alone in taxable property was $9,800,000,000. Five cities of Connecticut were worth $483,000,000. Massachusetts had twenty-two cities, exclusive of Boston, whose value was $1,415,000,000. Counting all New England, with New York and Boston, and leaving out the New Jersey conquest, the enemy's loot was $15,385,000,000, exclusive of the public city, state and federal property that he had seized.

"But what can he do with it?" the people of the rest of the United States began to ask each other presently.

Men had prophesied in the beginning that the conqueror, with his guns turned on the great cities, would extort vast tribute under threat of leveling them. But there had swept through the land a spirit that would face anything rather than to purchase safety and ignoble peace. "Let him destroy the cities and all the land!" said America. "We will build the seaboard up again better than before. We will recompense our fellow citizens for every scrap that they lose. But we shall never pay blackmail!"

Had the invader entertained any such plan this spirit that flamed unmistakably through the continent would have daunted him. But he had no such puerile design as to turn his wonderful prize into a cash. If his errand was one of brigandage and robbery it was brigandage and robbery in the most scientific modern terms. It was brigandage that enlisted in its conception and prosecution the brains of a world's financiers, the keen wit of a world's merchants, who wanted to win back the markets of the earth and the far sighted policy of international diplomats.

For almost a month the invader did not show his hand. For almost a month the seaboard from the end of Maine to New Jersey remained sealed. Then suddenly he gave the United States his reply to the question, "What can he do with it?"

He opened the wires. He did not send out a word over them. The people of New England and New York did it. They sent out a flood of dispatches that were like a great cry for help. It was the invader's reply through them. The reply was "Starvation!"

"We need coal!" We need iron and steel! We need cotton!" cried the people of New England. "We have used up all of our raw materials. We cannot work any longer unless you ship to us."

"We must reopen our banks," said Boston and New York and the hundred other cities. "We are paralyzed without our exchanges and relations with the financial system of the country."

"We need foodstuffs!" said they all. The first quick decision of the country was one of wrathful refusal to furnish the supplies that the enemy might fatten himself. But the importunities from the conquered places grew. They went to all the land, west and north and south. They came at the White House like a storm.

"We are on the edge of panic! We have almost 3,000,000 of factory workers who will starve unless we can instantly re-establish our industries and our finances!"

"It is intolerable!" said the president, his face white with anger. "It is simply a disguised form of blackmail. He means to make us finance him, for, of course, he will levy contributions on the country as soon as money begins to flow in."

"He has us!" said the secretary of the treasury. "As we were helpless against his cannon, so we are helpless against the new weapon that he has drawn—the starvation of our own people.

All the messages that we have received prove that. He has shown them that their fate is wholly in our hands; that if we refuse to send them money and foodstuffs and raw material they will have to blame us for the consequences."

The president of the United States rose. "Gentlemen," he said, "they are our own people. There is nothing else that we can do!"

That is the story of the invasion of America. There was nothing else that we could do!

How the land labored heart breakingly to put an army into the field; how the invader for eight long months held the conquered land and under his efficient mastery made its soil produce prodigally, its manufactories pour forth their wealth in redoubled measure; how he laid tax after tax on the men whose necks were under his foot; how, toward the end, he gathered his transports in all the harbors, and how, when the American army at last, 400,000 strong, moved toward the coast, he embarked all his men within seventy-two hours and sailed away unscathed—these things were but inevitable consequences.

The United States of America never knew how much wealth the conquest-dore had squeezed from the conquered territory in requisitions, in fines, in license fees, in taxes on imports and exports and in war levies. Statisticians figured for years afterward to discover from the wildly tangled accounts how much he had extorted. They figured and quarreled for a generation over the vast amounts that the United States had lost by losing the markets of the world, for when her ports were opened she found that the markets were gone.

Men said that from first to last the invading army had taken a sum not short of four billions of dollars. But whatever the sum, it was as nothing to the wound that had struck America near the heart—a brave nation, a greatly capable nation, made to grovel for her life because, in a world of men, she had failed to prepare for what men might do.

SCHOFIELD HOTEL AND COTTAGES

This popular resort is almost as well known as the Dells. It has been entertaining summer guests for forty years, and has lately been enlarged in capacity by the erection of a large modern building, fully equipped with every modern convenience, and affording dining room, assembly parlors, etc. This is an addition to the popular cottage plan, and adds to the previous popular attractions of the older system. The hotel and cottages are in extensive grounds, delightfully shaded by large oaks, and being away from the river is most especially desirable for families with children. The location is in the edge of Kilbourn on a pretty resident street, but a pleasant walk from the river and depot, and with regular free bus and carriage service to these points. The large hotel is not surpassed in this locality in point of modern style and comfort. The annex cottages and grounds make it altogether everything that anybody would desire. The test of efficiency is in the table. This hotel is especially noted for its excellent table board. Fresh butter, eggs, vegetables and fruit are supplied daily from the farm, and its preparation by a professional chef is perfect; chicken dinners twice a week.

Rates: $2 per day, $12 per week, half rates for children; rates made to family for week or longer. Rooms with bath must be applied for in advance.

Free use of garage.

SAYS LUSITANIA DESTROYER LOST

Fifteen-year-old Boy Gives Out Story Others Vouch for.

CREW ARE MADE PRISONERS

Lewis Charles Lewis Corroborated by Aunt—U-24 or U-29 Said to Have Been Captured in Net—Officers Admit They Sank Cunard Liner—Captors Feared Popular Uprising.

New York, July 12.—The German submarine which sank the Lusitania has been captured by the British in one of the English channel nets and the officers and crew imprisoned.

This was the statement made by Lewis Charles Lewis, fifteen year old son of a partner in the firm of Lewis & Lewis of 581 Fifth avenue, who arrived with his aunt, Mrs. J. Simmonds, who corroborated the boy's story, on the American liner St. Paul.

Young Lewis said that two weeks before the St. Paul left England his father, who is closely connected with government sources of information, told him of the capture.

Secret Prevents Uprising.
The crew were quietly placed in prison and no mention made of the capture because the British government feared an uprising of the people and a general demand that the crew be hanged.

"The submarine was either the U-24 or the U-29—I can't remember which," said Lewis. "The officers, after their capture, admitted it was their boat which destroyed the Lusitania."

HOLT IS BURIED AT DALLAS
Simple Services Are Hurried Through—Business Heads Pallbearers.

Dallas, Tex., July 12.—Twenty policemen guarded as many mourners at the private funeral of Frank Holt, capital bomb thrower and assassin of J. P. Morgan. Holt was buried in Grove Hill cemetery, about five miles east of the city. The funeral cortege dashed out of the city promptly at 5 o'clock and drove rapidly to the burial plot. Holt's body was under the ground and the service completed before a crowd of curious automobilists arrived.

The ministers who conducted the service only mentioned Holt as a conscientious student and a man of high honor. There was no other mention of his career. Frank Holt's pallbearers were among the most representative men in the city, including J. Hay, bank president; M. Guther, postmaster of Dallas; S. Y. Matthews, merchant, and others.

"STARBEAMS" WRITER DEAD
Charles A. Blakesley, Kansas City Star Humorist, Passes Away.

Kansas City, July 12.—Charles A. Blakesley, newspaper humorist and paragon, who had conducted the "Starbeams" column of the Kansas City Star for many years, died in Kansas City of typhoid fever.

Mr. Blakesley was born in Topeka, Kas., about forty years ago and received his newspaper training on the old Kansas City Times. He leaves a widow and a son.

BATTLE FOUGHT UNDER SEA
Submarines in Death Duel Are Found by Divers.

Turin, July 12.—Divers operating for the recovery of the Italian submarine Medusa in the Adriatic have discovered another submarine, evidently Austrian, nearby on the bottom.

It is evident that both were sunk in a submarine duel.

Italy to Have New Minister.
Rome, July 12.—It is reported Deputy Berzili, leader of the Republican party, soon will be appointed a minister.

OPPOSES VOTES FOR WOMEN
Former Senator Root's Position One of Great Importance.

Newark, N. J., July 12.—Despite the claims of the proponents of woman suffrage, who, it is said, have been connecting his name with the advancement of their propaganda, former United States Senator Elihu Root is not in favor of "votes for women."

The attitude of the former secretary of state was made known in New Jersey when James R. Nugent, one of the prominent Democratic state leaders, made public a strong pronouncement against women in politics from the premier member of the Taft cabinet.

The views of Mr. Root on the women suffrage possess a greater significance at this time than usual by reason of the fact that he is guiding the deliberations of the New York state constitutional convention at Albany, of which he is chairman.

DIRE DISTRESS

IT IS NEAR AT HAND TO HUNDREDS OF DIXON READERS.

Don't neglect an aching back. Backache is often the kidneys' cry for help.

Neglect hurrying to the kidneys' aid. Means that urinary troubles may follow.

Or danger worse than kidney trouble. Here's Dixon testimony.

Mrs. C. Charlton, 516 Lincoln avenue, Dixon, says: "I had been suffering for a long time from pains across my back and sides. The trouble was particularly severe at night and early in the morning. When I bent over to lift anything, I was hardly able to straighten up again. My kidneys were inactive. Finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Leake Bros Co.'s drug store and it didn't take them long to give me relief."

The above statement was given on May 1st, 1912, and when Mrs. Charlton was again interviewed on January 21st, 1915, she said: "I use Doan's Kidney Pills whenever my back gets lame. Another of my family has also taken them with the best of results."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Charlton had. Foster-Mil-

RUSSEL MAY TIGHTEN STATE PURSE STRINGS

Action Would Necessitate Special Legislative Session.

Chicago, July 12.—The tightening up of the purse strings by State Treasurer Andrew Russel pending a preliminary investigation of the effect of the suits started by Payette S. Munro and his associates, aimed at certain appropriations made by the last legislature, may lead to an agreed case in the Sangamon county courts.

Otherwise, it is stated by Mr. Munro, the state treasurer might decide to stop all payments out of the treasury until after the adjournment in the courts at the September term. This, in turn, it was thought, would necessitate a special session of the assembly to reappropriate several millions of dollars now attached on the ground of technical violation of the constitution.

Springfield, Ill., July 12.—"State Treasurer Russel will reopen his office today and pay out warrants as usual," declares Attorney General Lucey.

State officers assert Payette S. Munro, who filed the suit, was interested in a $200,000 appropriation bill for the purchase of a timber tract in Ogle county to be used as a state park and that he denounced the chairman of the appropriations committee of the house and senate when the bill was killed.
